ATLANTIC COUNCIL ENERGY & ECONOMIC SUMMIT

Dear colleague,

Thank you for your participation in this year's Atlantic Council Energy & Economic Summit, entitled New Opportunities in a Dynamic Region. The two-day event on November 15-16, 2012, brought together more than 350 top-level business, government, and nongovernmental organization leaders from 37 countries, including 44 CEOs and 27 ministers.

In addition to more than 25 sessions, lunches, and dinners, 100+ bilateral meetings took place during the Summit between government and business representatives. The content of the Summit, which was reported worldwide by some 200 media representatives, looked extensively at energy, economic, and political issues in and affecting the arc of countries extending from Europe to Central Asia.

The Summit is the cornerstone of Atlantic Council efforts to promote transatlantic interests in and engagement with government, business, and other leaders in this region to support cooperation and integration among its constituent countries.

The Atlantic Council is grateful to the Summit's corporate partners whose generous support helped make this annual event possible, as well as to the Government of Turkey, whose backing for this initiative has been crucial to its development and success.

Following are scenes from the 2012 Summit. We look forward to seeing you at the next Summit planned for November 21-22, 2013 in Istanbul.

Sincerely,

Ross Wilson
