cost of private education in the region as peers. The 2022 Arab Human education systems that do not build the and private education in the MENA at refugee camps, IB schools, and public entrepreneurial mind-set of risk taking, able to afford, we need to invest in skills. and platforms, which many developing looking to invest heavily in technologies through their FinTech startup Lendo! Saudi Entrepreneurs Osama AlRaee Amjad Ahmad that if companies do not build competitive products and services and scale due to capital funding increased over 2x to reach direct investment. If the skills gap is not plugged in the short term, we will witness systems globally, regional systems were built for jobs of the past and not the future. technology, green energy, and healthcare). As with many outdated education the future; however, they do not solve a more immediate problem: the significant resources. scalable and leveling the playing field for many, especially those with limited student and teacher assessments. Best of all, technology is making education embarking on similar reforms. Moreover, technology plays an increasingly alignment with the strategic goals and objectives of the nation's Vision 2030. vital for achieving good outcomes. Hence Saudi's considerable transformation of its Arabia, which spends as much as OECD nations on education, scores lower on the bottom, and all MENA countries were below the center point of 500. Saudi learning outcomes, most participating countries in the MENA region doubt that former Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew's relentless focus on educating his From tea to cars, Egypt and Tunisia struggle to pay for imports UAE has taken the lead on net zero as rest of Gulf plays catch-up Saudi Arabia Is Betting $1 Trillion It Can Become the Next Tourist Hotspot