

Mohammed Al Bashir is the Minister of Energy of the Syrian Arab Republic and a senior government official with extensive experience in energy, public administration, and national governance. He previously served as Prime Minister of the Syrian Salvation Government and later led Syria's Transitional Government during a critical period of political and institutional transition.

Al Bashir holds a degree in Electrical and Electronic Engineering from the University of Aleppo. He began his professional career in the energy sector at the Syrian Gas Company, where he held technical and supervisory roles in industrial systems and infrastructure operations.

Throughout the past decade, Al Bashir has held several senior leadership positions across development, humanitarian affairs, and government administration. As Minister of Energy, he is leading efforts to rehabilitate Syria's energy infrastructure, strengthen energy security, and advance international partnerships to support the country's economic recovery and long-term infrastructure development.