

Gemma Fox is News Director at TIME Magazine, where she oversees the US and international desks and leads coverage of major news events. An award-winning journalist and former correspondent based in Lebanon, she has reported from around the world and headed news desks at The Times of London and The Independent.